The card boasted of two stake features with he time-honored Spindrift as the red-letter attraction. This race was a handicap for threeyear-olds at one mile and a furlong, and it urnished a contest which enhanced the prestige f the event. Pierre Lorillard was represented by two good ones on the programme, but he withdrew Maribert in favor of David Garrick. H. Eugene Leigh accepted the top weight of 124 pounds with Ildrim, R. W. Walden & Sons pinned their faith to Contestor, 120 pounds, B. Jennings & Co. figured they had an outside chance with Anjou at 101 pounds. Francis D. Beard, the noted Brooklyn horseman, sprang a surprise by adding Prince of Melbourne, who was eligible at 115 pounds, and then the guessing began. David Garrick was installed favorite with lidrim second choice. The added horse opened at fives but was quickly played down to 16 to 5. Contestor found steady support at 8 to 1 while Anjou was neglected at 25 to 1.

After a perfect start Contestor pursued his usual tactics and sprinted to the front. Anjou made a bluff to follow him but found the pace too warm and Prince of Melbourne moved up into second place with Ildrim third. They raced in this order to the home stretch where Spencer sat down for one of his ideal rides. He gradually crept up to Contestor, reached his throat-laton at the last pole, and finally brought Prince of Melbourne home by a neck after a thrilling drive. Ildrim wound up in third place, twelve lengths behind.

The Spindrift is one of the historic events on the racing calendar. It was established in 1855 and won by such flyers as The Bard, Hanover, Raceland, Potomac and Pickpocket during the interval up to 1893 when the route was reduced from one mile and a quarter to the present distance of one mile and an eighth. Since then the race has been signalized by the successive triumphs of Glenmoyne, Henry of Navarre, Bright Phoebus, Formal, On Deck, Sallor King, and Ethelbert, but it remained for Prince of Mebourne to make the fastest time ever recorded in the event, the previous best being 154 1-5 credited to Glenmoyne. The best on record over the course is 153 made by the noted four-year-old Terra Cotta, with 124 pounds up, on June 23, 1888.

for the Lawrence Realization Stakes on July 4, a race for which the best of the three-yearolds are being specially prepared. Frank Beard was congratulated on all sides after yesterday's race and felt happy in the possession of a good colt, sound as a beil and trained to the hour. The Spindrift was preceded by the June Stakes for two-year-olds at five and a half furlongs. Eleven youngsters weighed out and plungers jostled each other in a scramble to get the best odds on offer against Glenellie. They played her from 2 to 1 to 8 to 5 but some wise people were busy investing on W. C. Whitney's Hanover colt flolstein and J. R. & F. P. Keene's Domino colt Olympian, who was understood to be faster than Commando. Most of the young sprinters shot their bolt before reaching the last quarter where the real struggle began. Holstein stood the drive gamely and won out by a head from olympian who beat Gold fleels half a length.
Fake fluished within a head of the Bard colt.

About the only other event of any pretensions
was the handicap at one mile and a sixteenth on turf. Raffaello and Intrusive were preferred in the order named but both fluished away outside the money, Jack Point winning easily from Montanic, who beat old Maximo Gomez a head.

The feature of the second race was the signal failure of Blue Devil, the favorite, and the easy win of the 30 to 1 shot, Ten Candles. Exceptionally fast pace may have worred Blue Devil, but his disconsolate backers would not listen to any excuses. W. C. The plungers who stood aghast while Ten Candlea galloped in at 30 to? yesterday may be consoled to learn that when W. Keyes bought the colt recently he wore smooth plates. He was meant to win on the turf but rain set in and the colt skated all over the track. Ten Candles has a tender mouth and yesterdaya pneumatic bit made of catguit and rubber was tried with signal results. Henceforth every candidate from the Keyes stable will be similarly equipped. It is now up to other trainers to improve on this innovation.

News of the Wheelmen. Justice Dayton of Watervliet, N. Y., is so nuch in sympathy with the wheelmen that he frequently goes out and holds court on the cycle path. This enables the constables to keep on catching offenders who ride without license tags while attending court. The constables get $1.75 of the fine, which cannot be less than $5 and may be made $25. The Judge helps the constables, and the honest riders who support the paths in that county rejoice.

Newburgh, June 28.—The Newburgh Wheelmen, whose colors william A Ladue wears in all his races, gave a reception to Ladue at their clubhouse to-night in recognition of his marvellous ride at Manhattan Beach on last Saturday. The climax of the affair was the presentation to Ladue by Lawyer Kohl, on behalf of the wheelmen, of a gold testimonial valued at $100.

Baltimore, June 28.—About fifteen hundred persons paid their way into the National Colossium to-night to see the fifteen-mile motor-paced race between Charley Miller and Charlis Turville of Philadelphia. Turville deteated Waller so handly several weeks ago here that many thought that he had an excellent opportunity to defeat Miller. Although Miller came out victorious, Turville gave him a hard race. Turville took the lead at the start and held it for three miles. Miller then spurted, and by the second of the third lesp gained half a lap over his opponent. Miller gradually increased his lead and Turville's pacers tried to urge their man on, but the Philadelphian could not hold the pace. At the second lap of the ninth mile Miller had increased his lead alap. Turville made a game fight and tried hard to regain lost ground, but the best he could do was to prevent Miller for minereasing his lead. Time for Miller for 15 miles, 26 minutes, 45 3-5 seconds.

In a motor cycle race Charley Miller and Robert Miller rode five miles in 7 minutes, 38 seconds.

According to the tenor of gossip among the sports yesterday, the next big fight to be pulled off in Greater New York before the law against boxing goes into effect will be between Gus Ruhlin and Jim Jeffries. Steps were taken yesterday to bring the pair together at Chicago in a six-round bout. George Grant, who represents the Tattersalls A. C., saw Jeffries yesterday and offered him a purse of $10.000 to face Ruhlin in the Windy City. Billy Madden was willing to accept on behalf of Ruhlin, but in thinking it over agreed with Jeffries that it was better to wait and have the bout decided in the East.

GREAT MATCH AT POLO. SECOND GAME FOR THE SENIOR

CHAMPIONSHIP AT PROSPECT PARK.

Country Club of Westchester Team Scores Contest Before a Big Crowd of Spectators
-The Winner Scores 12 to 4 3-4 Goals A perfect summer day and the anticipation of a fine match brought out a great crowd of championship of the Polo Association yesterday at Prospect Park. The contending teams were the Country Club of Westchester and the Devons, from Philadelphia. The crowd stood four or five deep around the ropes, and at every ten feet or so, some sort of a vehicle filled with passengers was drawn up. The coaches and stand, and they were laden with the usual array of fashionables, L. C. Alternus having a drag illed with Philadelphians. Mrs. Lawrence Waterbury, a bride of a few weeks, was one of the spectators, and she had an anxious moment at the start of the first period, when her nusband, the Westchester's back, took a play on. This period was fought out without either team being able to score a goal. Besides Waterbury's fall there were snappings of girths and martingales and time out to change ponies, each affording a resting time yet every player was glad when Charles Wood rang the bell that marked the end of the period. The ball was out a dozen times on the side boundaries, the majority of the times at the Devon end, for the Westchesters forced the play from the start. They had the ball ou six times at the Devon goal end. McFadden's of the instances. Wheeler of the Devons once had the ball out at the Westchester end and nearly scored. This was in the first part was in the saddle again in a thrice and ready to

There was a great deal of boundary play during the period and the methods of the two teams were well brought out. McFadden bore the brunt of the fray for Devon, with Snowden as the most accurate hitter of the ball and most dashing of riders. Wheeler was always reliable, especially when on his gray, and Kendrick also played well. The team, however, was outclassed by superior generalship after the first period. Better sacrifice work has seldom been seen than the Westchesters put up. Reynal, while striking short at times, obeyed Cowdin's orders implicitly, and his riding off work to leave the ball free for J. M. Waterbury, Jr., or Cowdin was simply perfection, while his subsequent assisting plays scored heavily for his side. L. Waterbury made an ironclad guard to goal, and in the few gallops he made with the ball his alternating strokes ever the near and off sides of the pony were a treat to see. J. M. Waterbury and his brothers had superb mounts, including four new ponies that have been brought on from California. "Monte" Waterbury rode hard and hit true, while Cowdin, as usual, was brilliant in play and as wise as Solomon in coaching his team.

No less than nine goals were scored in the second period. Devon got the first two, Snowden making the first after three hits from muddle field and Wheeler the second, who took the ball from Snowden and galloped with it for the quarter of the field, outriding both the Waterburys. Thereafter Westchester had the better of the period. "Monte" Waterbury caught his club's opening goal, with Cowdin's aid, and Reynal made the second on a backhand stroke from a scrimmage before the goal, to which point L. Waterbury had brought in a five-hit stroke down the entire field. Now all square the fifth goal fell to Westchester in a way that brought out lits team work thoroughly.

"Monte" Waterbury had turned the bal from Wheeler and galloped after it to the boundary. "Leave it!" cried out his brother, who came up at hot speed. Although he had his club poised to strike. "Monte" left, and, after two hits "Larry" had the ball well up to the goal, where, when he was ridden of teams were well brought out. McFadden bore it could be easily scooped in, was the tactics the Devonites had to cope against thereafter, and it was like bucking up against a stone wall. Many of Devon's runs with the ball and their up-standing against desperate riding-off methods brought out volumes of cheers from the onlookers, but the good work was all without avail, for Westchester won by 12 goals to 4%. The teams were:

To-day the championship competitors will be the first team of the Meadow Brooks and the Philadelphia Country Club.

Having split even in the two contests which they played last year the veteran cricketers of New York and Philadelphia decided to settle the question of Island yesterday. The Quakers came over early in the morning in the special car of Vice-President John P. Green, and as they had a team of undoubted ability they were sanguine of success. The New Yorkers limited their eleven strickly to veterans, and did not feel their prospects particularly bright against the array of talent opposed to them. However, they determined to do their best, and when R. St.G. G. determined to do their best, and when R. St.G. G. Walker, the captain of the team, announced that he would present a handsome sliver cup to the player making the highest score, every man made up his mind to strive hard to obtain the trophy.

As events turned out N. S. Walker, Jr., the donor's brother, won the cup with a splendid inning of 63, which laid the foundation for the victory which the New Yorkers eventually obtained by the handsome margin of 137 runs. H. Maniey also batted brilliantly for the winners for an even nalf-century, while T. G. Clarke, R. St. G. Walker and W. M. Donald helped to swell the total. C. E. Haines and G. Morgan divided the bonor of top score for Philadelphia, while J. A. Scott and W. C. Lowry also obtained double figures. The New Yorkers expected great things from D. S. Newhall, but a splendid catch by Henry Martin disposed of him before he could get set, while equally brilliant work in the slips by T. G. Clarke disposed of J. O. Comfort and J. A. Scott, the latter very unfortunately getting out when he was nicely set. The score:

FINAL SPINS AT POUGEREEPSIE. Rival Crews in Racing Trim for the Big Re-

POUGRKEEPSIE, June 28 .- As the day for the rowing contests on the Hudson approaches he feeling grows that the struggle for the Varsity race will be as notable as was the race ast year, when Pennsylvania and Wisconsin fought such a desperate battle in the last mile of the course and the Black and Red pulled out a victory from what looked like almost certain defeat. The showing made by the crews in their practice on the Hudson is favorable to Pennsylvania in many respects. Her boat runs very fast, and the men are in good heart and their physical condition is excellent. Ellis Ward is very confident of winning the 'Varsity race and also the four-oared race. He thinks that Pennsylvania will have to beat Wisconsin in the 'Varsity contest. It may be, however, that the instructions he gave to his crew last year with a view to beating Cornell may come in handy on Saturday. Courtney has as usual turned out a finished 'Varsity crew. Their an eight, and if the water is smooth many would not be surprised to see the Red and White well up in front when the crews pass the judge's boat at the finish. Courtney has contented himself with saying that he knows the Cornell Varsity eight can go the distance. A Cornell graduate said to-day: "I can't believe that the old man is going to get beat the third time running. It would be against all precedent."

While much has been heard about the Wisconsin 'Varsity eight being overtrained, no suggestion of this kind has been made with reference to Cornell. It is admitted that they are trained down pretty fine but no weakness has developed in the boat. Wisconsin, on the heat, which indicates that their physical con dition was not very good. There has been great improvement in Columbia's 'Varsity eight since Hanlan took hold of the crew, and he feels that they will do credit to the Blu and White. Columbia, however, has had three coaches within a few weeks, and a crew with such a variety of instruction may get mixed under the excitement of racing.

Georgetown comes here under conditions very similar to those under which Wisconsin came last year. The Maryland men did not get here until almost the eve of the race, and in their practice they have not made a good showing. They do not pull their stroke out hard and firm, and in spurting their work looks hard and firm, and in spurting their work looks superficial.

More confidence is felt at Pannsylvania's quarters than among any of the other college contingents. The Quakers will be disappointed if they do not win out in all three contests. During the time the crews have been on the fludson. Columbia has done the hardest work. Hanlan has had the Blue and White eights and Varsity four out for two long practice sessions almost every day. He does not enthuse much over the freshmen, but he is confident that the 'Varsity four has merit and he likes the 'Varsity eight. Of the freshmen crews, Wisconsin is considered to be the best and hardly anybody doubts, but that they will win Saturday. The 'Varsity fours are all better this year than last and their race promises to be a pretty one.

urdny. The 'Varsity fours are all better this year than last and their race promises to be a pretty one.

Poughkeepsie is beginning to take on a boatrace atmosphere. The store windows are filled with college colors. The Bine and Gray of Georgetown is a new color this year and people look at it a second time before realizing what it represents. Wisconsia and Cornell badges are seen in the largest proportion with Pennsylvania a close third. The hotels are filling up and an influx is expected to-morrow from New London. The news that Yale had defeated Harvard in the university contest had been anticipated and did not excite even a ripple of comment.

The crews put in their final practice to-day. A fierce electrical storm, accompanied by wind and a hard rain, prevailed for an hour this afternoon, starting in just as Wisconsin, Pennsylvania, Columbia and Georgetown were ready to go out. Wisconsin and Columbia rowed up the river after the rain lessened a little, but Pennsylvania did not go out, and Georgetown waited until late in the evening. Columbia's three crews and Wisconsin's two crews went up as far as Roosevelt's Foint, spurting at intervals. Each one of the eights did considerable splashing, but the water was rough.

At Cornell's quarters a quiet morning was did considerable splashing, but the water was rough.

At Cornell's quarters a quiet morning was spent. Courtney made some changes in the rigging of the Varsity shell, and about 10 o'clock he had the men out to test the new arrangement.

Neither of the Wisconsin crews went out this morning. The Georgetown crew paddled around for a while before dinner and the Columbia crews also did light work. Ward sent the Quaker 'Varsity over the course on the flood tide, starting at the flush so as to get the advantage of the current. The freshmen paced the 'Varsity for two miles, dropping out only a length behind. Ward said that the time made was very fast considering the slow tide.

The crews draw for positions at the Nelson.

The lanes are numbered from the west to the east. The races will all be rowed on the ebb tide, and the outside or most easterly course is considered the best. When slack water sets in the outside lane will feel the first swirl of the change in the current. A strong south wind has been prevailing for several days and the ebb tide, it is expected, will be later than calculated upon Saturday. Richard Armstrong of Yale will referee the races Saturday. Several revenue cutters have been assigned for dity
to see that the rules of the course are enforced.
One of them, the Manhattan, has already arrived here. The judge for Columbia on the referee's boat, the Gretchen, will be Charles H.
Mapes. W. H. Wallace Jr., will represent Columbia as judge at the finish and W. L. Oakleigh, manager of the Columbia crew, will be timer. As there will be no coxswains in the four-oar race, the bow men will wear colored handkerchiefs as follows: Columbia, light blue;
Cornell, red; Pennsylvania, dark blue.
